FIELD DAY HELPS BOY SCOUTS AND BUSINESS MEN

Lads Benefit Financially and Merchants Physically In Saturday's Meet

The Kiwanis-Rotary field day is over, and now there are a lot of Glendale business men who have sore muscles to remind them of the big event.

While returns of the world series were still reaching the city Saturday, the members of the two clubs journeyed to the local baseball grounds at Park avenue and San Fernando road to decide a three-inning "indoor baseball" championship that was said by some to be of even greater interest.

The field day was given as a benefit to help the Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills District council. From a financial standpoint and otherwise, it was declared to be a big success. The scouts sold soft drinks to the "fans" who lined the field during the doings, also adding a few dollars to the fund.

After the Kiwanis walked away with the game with a score of 18 to 4, the Glendale merchants played the Eagle Rock Eagles. The Eagles won to a score of 8 to 4.

Full of Thrills
While the luncheon clubs' game was an indoor affair, it proved full of thrills to the last minute. To make it easier for the local "Babe Ruths" the bases were brought closer to the home plate. Announcement before the game was that a case of ginger ale would be the "home run" prize, spurred the heavy hitters on to great efforts. As a result the muscles of the members of the two teams were given the overdose of exercise.

The lineup of the two teams in true baseball fashion follows:
Kiwanis—Haywood 1b, Townman rf, Bode c, Fairchild p, Anderson 2b, E. Bentley ss, Baird 3b, Hazleton lf, Reeves cf.

Rotary—Kirk c, Olin p, Hollister 1b, G. Bentley 2b, Kelly ss, Emery 3b, Karr rf, Hunter cf, Kent lf, and Eastman cf part of game.

The team captains were: C. H. Kirkman, Rotary; P. J. Hayselden, Kiwanis.

Haywood Is Star
No sooner was the game started than Haywood, who proved to be the star hitter of the Kiwanis team, knocked a home run. At the game's end it was found that four of the eighteen runs were made by the same player. R. Bentley also made a home run for the Kiwanis in the second inning.

For the Rotarians one run was made by each of the following: Olin, Hollister, Karr, Hunter. Umpire J. F. McClish was a busy man throughout the game, for there was a general tendency to overlook a lot of rules that the Giants and Yanks are held down to. However, Mr. McClish didn't seem to mind their over-stepping the rules for one day at least, although thirty-five years ago when he was playing professional baseball with the Kansas City Blues, he would probably have felt different about the matter.

After a brief intermission following the Kiwanis-Rotary game the Glendale Merchants and the Eagle Rock Eagles got into action. While the Merchants seemed to have difficulty in "warming up" to what was expected of them they nevertheless put up a good battle. The Eagles got an early lead which seemed to worry the local boys a bit. During the latter part of the game they began to find themselves and were going strong when the nine innings were over.

ANYONE WANT TO ADOPT INFANT? IT'S A BOY!

Abandoned Child Now Being Tenderly Cared for In
H. P. Goertz Home

Although the tiny chap who was found early last Friday morning wrapped in a worn blanket on the lawn of the Henry P. Goertz home at 347 North Central avenue isn't old enough to talk and tell his name and the tragic circumstances that led to his abandonment, nevertheless he is a happy youngster, and has already smiled his way into the hearts of every member of the Goertz household and the countless people who journeyed to the Goertz home yesterday with pleas to adopt the happy little fellow.

"Bobby" is what the Goertz family have named him and he has been affectionately installed as the ninth child in the household. But this is only a temporary honor and as soon as it is definitely decided that his parents will not claim him, suitable parents are to be selected and "Bobby" legally adopted.

Who Wants Bobby?
"The only thing we are hoping," say Mr. and Mrs. Goertz, "is that some one in Glendale will adopt 'Bobby' so we can see him often. He is a lovely little fellow and all of us love him. We've already raised eight of our own and our son Henry P. Goertz, Jr., and his wife and three children are now en route to Glendale from St. Paul, so you see we don't feel that we can assume an added responsibility."

"Bobby" is blonde, weighs close to twenty-five pounds and is probably ten months old. Added to these is a happy disposition featured by happy smiles, displaying four cunning baby teeth.

FORBIDS HUSBAND TO EVEN SPEAK TO HIS WIFE

Occidental Freshman, Just Married, Swatted for Disobeying Rules

Occidental college traditions are so inviolate that a freshman can not talk even to his wife on the campus. This decision was made recently by the Occidental "Ku Klux Klan" tribunal, acting as spokesman for the upper classmen of Occidental, and the only married freshman in the institution of learning was sentenced to corporal punishment before the student body the following day.

According to custom, the Juniors and Seniors issued a proclamation to first year men at the opening of school, and among the manifold prohibition, the humble "frosch" when on the campus was denied the privilege of talking to a member of the opposite sex, except for the purpose of asking her company to a college function, and on these occasions, such conversation must be restricted to thirty seconds.

Law Is Broken

The law was broken, and a rather surprised freshman was called into the presence of the tribunal composed of Harold Sloan, student body president, Harold Wagner and Carroll Hull, Junior and Senior class presidents.

"You are charged with queening," asserted Chief Justice Sloan. "Guilty or not guilty?"

"I have been talking to my wife, sir, if that's what you mean," replied the trembling "frosch."

"Did you find the proclamation made any exceptions of freshman's wives?" inquired Sloan.

"But a man has got to talk to his wife, sir, and I am not responsible for the proclamation."

"Neither are we responsible for you getting married," said the judge. "You are sentenced to fifteen days' away."

The next day the culprit received his punishment before some five hundred fellow students. His wife who witnessed the proceeding, was heard to remark: "If George doesn't behave himself, I'll tell the Ku Klux Klan that he has been 'queening' me. I sure have the 'dooing' on him now."

They reported that he, thus far, has refused to make a full statement to the deputy sheriffs and has failed to explain his whereabouts at the time Dernier was strangled and his body thrown into an irrigation ditch near here on September 15.

ARREST YOUTH FOR MURDER OF PASTOR, FRIEND

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 9.—The mysterious double murder of Dr. Edward Wheeler Hall, wealthy rector of the fashionable Protestant Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist, and his beautiful choir leader, Mrs. James Mills—a crime of such dramatic qualities that it aroused international interest—reached a sensational climax today when Clifford Hayes, a 19-year-old boy, was arrested on the charge of first degree murder, and his chum, Raymond Schneider, was arrested as a material witness. Dr. Hall and his companion were the victims of mistaken identity, according to a confession alleged to have been made by young Schneider to the Somerset and Middlesex counties authorities after an all night grilling. Hayes was madly infatuated with a 15-year-old girl, Pearl Bahmer, and was suspicious of the relationship existing between the girl and her step-father. On the night of September 14, according to the statement attributed to Schneider, Hayes and himself were walking in the direction of Bueclench park when they saw the Bahmer girl in company of a man. Hayes flamed up into a jealous rage. Hayes and Schneider followed the couple but lost track of them. The two youths continued through the lonely path and at 1 o'clock on the following morning (September 15), saw a man and a woman enter Derussey lane, a dark and isolated roadway leading to the old Phillips farm with its deserted house. Schneider and Hayes saw the couple only for a moment in the pitch darkness, then turned off towards the farm house. As they approached the building the youths saw a couple under a stunted crab apple tree. Hayes, according to the reported confession, lost control of himself, believing, doubtless, that his sweetheart was giving her affection to another. With an oath he drew a pistol and leaped forward. Hayes is said to have fired four shots. In the flash of gun powder, Schneider saw the faces of the couple beneath the tree and realized with a shock that they were not Pearl Bahmer and the man Hayes sought. Schneider said he ran, terror stricken, from the scene but met Hayes ten minutes later. He did not know what Hayes had been doing in the meantime. Schneider said he had no revolver himself.

SCHOOL TEACHERS HOLD DISCUSSION ON THEIR WORK

Educators Meet at Union
High; Hear Appeal for Success of Bonds

About 200 teachers of the high school and grammar school districts are attending school today in the auditorium of Glendale Union high school.

Luncheon was served to them at noon in the high school cafeteria. Teachers were classified according to their departments and spent the hour discussing matters of general interest.

An appeal for the co-operation of all teachers in securing the success of the approaching high school bond election was made by George U. Moyse, principal of the high school. He traced briefly the present situation and reminded them that it is one which cannot be neglected.

Called Desperate

"There is no relief in sight until after January 1, 1924," he remarked. "You know how long it takes for building operations. The situation is a desperate one for all of the children who are coming up through the seventh and eighth grades now."

Merton E. Hill, principal of Chaffee Union high school at Ontario, addressed the assembly this morning on the subject "Education for the Larger Life."

"They tell us illiteracy is to be stamped out," he asserted. "Who is to do it? The teachers! They say that we are a nation of six graders. What is to overcome that? The schools! They say that we must have a great program of citizenship to make great American citizens in the future. Who is to do that? The teachers! They say that boys and girls must be better trained vocationally so that they can do some part of the world's work. Who is to do that? The teachers!"

"The America of tomorrow is in the making in the public schools of today. As teachers we must know our task."

Service Center
"Our school system must be the biggest institution in the community outranking business houses. It must be the service center of the community."

"It is up to the teachers to create new ideals. The universe wants new ways of doing things. It is up to the teachers to develop a new course of study and new ideas."

Quotations from Edwin Markham and Edward Roland Sullivan, two of California's poets, were interspersed in the speech.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON GRACEFUL RECEIVING

A friend of mine has an elderly relative whom she furnishes with most of the latter's spending money. One day while I was at the niece's home she had a letter from Auntie in which the latter mentioned the fact that her niece's birthday was on the way and wanted to know what she would like for a birthday gift.

"Now what," said the niece, "can I think that Auntie can make and that won't cost her too much?"

"Why don't you tell her not to bother to give you anything," suggested someone. "You know it just comes out of your money. It's really absurd for her to give you anything when you have to pay for it in the end."

As much a luxury as the movies. "Why is it any more absurd than for me to pay for her to go to the movies once in a while or to pay her carfare when she wants to go visiting," asked the niece. "She loves to do things for me, and I wouldn't deprive her of that pleasure any more than I would of any pleasure I could afford to give her. Nothing I could do would hurt her feelings more than to bring it home to her that she has nothing to give. I usually suggest something I would have to buy myself, and get round it that way. But even if I couldn't, I wouldn't hurt Auntie by not giving her a chance to give me something."

I like that, don't you? I think that girl shows a fine sense of values and a fine ability to put herself in the other person's place.

Oh, Don't Bother! I think there are many people who are generous about gifts and about doing things for people, but are not generous about letting other people do things for them. I have known sons and daughters placed in relation to their parents as this woman was to her aunt, who were very generous about doing for the parents but very selfish about letting the latter do for them. "Oh, don't bother," they would say when they were asked what they wanted for Christmas or birthdays. "I wish you wouldn't try to give me anything." And when the parents did manage to compass some small gifts the children received them with thanks commensurate to the size of the gift and its value to them, instead of commensurate to the amount of the love and eagerness and longing to give pleasure which these dear old folks had put into their gifts.

On the whole, I think the generous giver is more common than the generous receiver. I suppose that is because it

Aid American Women to Get French Gowns

Viola Cross, who is better known to New Yorkers as Viola Kraus, who figured prominently in the Elwell murder case. Miss Cross has created for herself one of the best and highest paid positions in Paris—that of liaison officer between French fashion houses and American women who come to Paris to purchase gowns and other habiliments. In addition, she has created many smart designs. She was divorced from Victor von Schlegel whose second marriage last June has just become known to his circle of friends in New York.

"Crops on the continent are lighter than previously forecast, and English grain prospects are below what was expected," says Mr. Foley. "The English crop, while heavy, is of an inferior quality, so that there will probably be a heavy demand for American fruits, especially eating apples. Canned fruits will also have a good market."

The afternoon frock patterns itself after the long, slender line decreed by Paris.

BEAUTY AID NOT BEST, SAYS DEAN

Woman College Head Tells of Individuality Loss by Flappers Today

DETROIT.—Artificial aids to beauty, used by the flapper of today, robs her of individuality, but it is not a moral issue, and the world is all wrong in making a fuss over it, in the opinion of Miss Jean Hamilton, of New York, who recently took over her duties as dean of women at the University of Michigan.

"Paint and powder, short skirts and bobbed hair is not a moral issue, an essential, so why fuss so much over it," she questions.

"My chief objection to paint and powder, the lip tick and the elongated eyebrow is that it takes so much variety out of the human countenance. On Broadway as one walks down one meets an everlasting procession of young women, all rouged and powdered, all using lip stick and eyebrow brush and color of the same type, in the same way."

Makes Painted Dolls "It takes from the human being its humanness; it is too much like looking at a window display of high painted dolls."

"But it will pass in time, just as the short skirt and bobbed hair is passing, and eventually we will get back to normal again, I expect. I hope so, at any rate, if only for the sake of variety again."

"It seems to me that failing of older people is partly responsible for the fact that the younger generation despises supervision."

Miss Hamilton's life has been spent with girls of the age of college girls. As to policies, Miss Hamilton has not yet decided on any policies as to the conduct of her office here. She is going to spend some time getting acquainted first. "First, I must acquaint myself with the traditions and customs of the university. I shall work along with the policies now here and the customs already established until I find myself."

BEAUTY CHATS

PERFUMES AND TOILET WATERS

The love of perfume is born in every woman, handed down to her from innumerable generations of female ancestors who had discovered the curious effect that certain odors have upon the nerves and the emotions. I wonder who was the first woman to find out that certain perfumes made her more attractive in the eyes of men? Certainly in ancient times the wealthier and more beautiful woman the heavier the odor she carried about with her. She literally walked in a perfumed cloud.

Really good perfumes cost enormous amounts today, and cheap perfumes, of course, are never worth the buying. Perfumes unfortunately are hard to make at home since the proper blending of the various oils, spices and tinctures is a complicated process. However, there are one or two simple formulas which you might try.

Pure Extract of Pink Oil of pink, 1 ounce Rectified spirit, 1 pint Mix and agitate these until they are thoroughly blended. Here is a good imitation of Extract of Violets Bruised cinnamon, 1 1/2 ounces Cloves, 3 ounces Rectified spirit, 1 pint Let this stand in a warm dark cupboard for a week, shaking it up frequently, decant into a fresh bottle.

These are the two simplest formulas I know. A fragrant jar of dried flower petals can be made by any woman who has a garden. Such a jar gives a delicate perfume to a room all the winter long. A layer of salt and cinnamon should be sprinkled over every layer of petals.

A. P.—Any stimulating treatment, such as dashing cold water over the chest, followed up by a brisk rubbing will build up the muscular tissue and make the skin firm; therefore, this would either reduce or enlarge as the case required. If there was flabbiness of the muscles or fatty accumulation, the fat would be absorbed

Pacific-Southwest Review

By H. NELSON, Manager Glendale Avenue Branch Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank

Owing to the multitude of activities of the Pacific-Southwest, there are more economic problems to solve in this territory than perhaps in any other similar area of the United States. The very diversity of activities—together with the comparative youth of the country—increases the number and complexity of these problems.

In the wide diversification of agricultural crops alone—California produces more classes of soil products than does probably any other comparable area of the globe—there are created many complex problems as to the proper allocation among the districts of labor, freight cars and financial aid. Real system is required at all times to maintain a balance in and between the activities—whether agricultural, industrial, commercial, etc.—of the many major and minor economic zones that go to make up the great Pacific-Southwest.

The newspapers of the Pacific-Southwest are accomplishing a great deal toward this proper balance by the dissemination of economic information and prove of infinite assistance to the central labor bureaus, to the large financial institutions, to the agricultural bureau of inspectors, and to the railroads, by keeping these forces so informed that they may successfully mobilize at the innumerable centers where aid is needed.

A smooth flow of credit from the metropolitan reservoir, the fair allocation of freight and refrigerator cars, the provision of skilled workmen for the various seasonal industries, the proper dissemination of advertising and proper marketing of the products of this Pacific-Southwest, requires the creation of financial organizations with big enough capacity to enable them to function as the nerve-centers in their various lines. Only when this exists does the economic world of the Pacific-Southwest function efficiently.

Once a bank, such as the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank has mobilized the funds of the great Southwest, we look in a large measure to the local newspaper for authentic, economic news of their community to the end that the necessary financial support may be rendered each district. Those newspapers which publish proper economic news are of tremendous assistance in the maintaining of a normal circulation of economic forces to the various districts of the state, whether such be the rather intangible force of credit of large financial institutions or the actual physical forces of marketing organizations.

FROM KIDNEY TROUBLE TO DROPSY IS NEXT STEP

Monday Health Talk No. 3 By Eble and Eble, Ds. C.

Dropsy is listed among the incurable diseases, but in most such cases, if the cause is successful; particularly is this true when the case is taken before the condition becomes too far advanced. In dropsy there is under elimination of the fluid wastes of the body, and, though other organs may be involved, the principal cause always is kidney weakness.

The cause of this under elimination of fluid wastes, of course, is weakened mental impulses over spinal nerve lines, due to displacement of spinal bones. Where there is displacement of spinal joints there is narrowing of the spinal nerve opening. The spinal nerves emitting through this opening are pinched, and the normal flow of mental impulses over these nerve lines is impeded. When the organs affected are the liver and kidneys there is under elimination, and a gradual poisoning of the system results. Chiropractic spinal adjustments are necessary to restore the perfect mechanical condition of the spine, and thus remove the cause of disease.

DROPSICAL CONDITION GOES AFTER ADJUSTMENTS

"This is to certify that for two years I suffered from chronic appendicitis and kidney trouble until I was in a dropsical condition. I then turned to Chiropractic and during a course of twenty adjustments I lost fourteen pounds. The adjustments were continued and today I am feeling better in every way. The appendicitis has not troubled me since the first adjustment. I cannot recommend Chiropractic too highly to those who may be sufferers such as I was."—C. N. Welch, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1341W.

Uncle Ben says: "A tramp is a fellow who circulates, Nerve, and a judge is a fellow who retires him from circulation."

The chief organs which excrete the waste products of the body are the lungs, the kidneys, the intestines and the skin. The waste cast off from them is in the breath, the urine, the feces and the perspiration.

The order in which I have given these is the order of the seriousness of any obstruction to these excretions. For instance, the suppression of the breathing is more quickly fatal than the suppression of the urine, and the suppression of the urine is more fatal than the suppression of the feces and the sweat.

The kidneys are a pair of organs placed to the right and left of the vertebral column (spine), just below the diaphragm, half of each being above the last rib and half below.

Roughly speaking, the kidneys are composed of about a dozen bundles of urinary tubules (small tubes) closely associated with the most beautiful supply of blood vessels, supplied by two large but short vessels, connecting the kidneys directly with the aorta and the vena cava, the main blood vessel of the body.

The tubules empty into the upper dilated part of the ureter, the tube which conveys the urine to the bladder and which comes off from the inner side of the kidneys. The ureters are about the size of a goose quill and from 12 to 16 inches long. They open into the bladder and lead down to the back. The urethra is the tube which leads from the bladder to the external opening.

The kidneys are not in the abdominal region proper. They are behind the scenes, we might say, back of the curtain—the peritoneum. The peritoneum is the membrane that covers the intestines and lines the abdominal cavity.

When the kidneys are in normal position they are held in a cushion of fat and are cuddled down nicely and cozily back of this peritoneum curtain. Occasionally one or both of them get the wanderlust and will step out a bit. They are then known as wandering or floating, or loose, or movable kidneys.

Dr. Richard Cabot says that they are not at all unusual, but it is very unusual for them to give any symptoms whatever—unless the patient finds out about it, and then his life becomes a perfect haze from thinking about them and fearing that they are going to flop over and thus cause an obstruction to the outflow of urine. But Dr. Cabot is so convinced that this is an unusual thing to happen that he advises physicians who discover a kidney is movable to say nothing about it.

Usually it is in the very emaciated individuals that the kidneys may exhibit the ambitious tendency. Now, I hope I am not going to have all my T. T. T.'s worrying about their kidneys. For goodness sakes, don't. Don't think about them but do take our advice on how to gain so your kidneys will have the normal amount of fat to keep them contented.

Diet and Health

We have been thinking about kidneys recently because our president's wife, who has endeared herself very much to the public, has been acutely ill with a disorder of her kidneys. We have been reading eagerly every day of her condition and hoping and praying that her refractory organs would get back to their work.

It has made us all realize how very important the kidneys are. Because of this great interest which has been excited by Mrs. Harding's case, and because the subject is so very important, I shall devote some papers to it this week.

The chief organs which excrete the waste products of the body are the lungs, the kidneys, the intestines and the skin. The waste cast off from them is in the breath, the urine, the feces and the perspiration.

Will HOLBROOK Be the Next Great Oil Field?

We have been fortunate in securing 220 acres in the New Holbrook, Arizona, oil field, only 3,800 feet from the Arizona Consolidated Oil Company's Adamana Well No. 1.

This well is now drilling at 2450 feet in Dolomite Lime. They have already passed through the first three sands showing high grade 42 gravity paraffin base oil and any day the drill may break into a gusher. Geologist Dorsey Hager, in his extensive report on the field, says they are liable to strike pay anywhere between 2,500 and 3,000 feet.

The following article appeared simultaneously in the Los Angeles Times and a number of big dailies on September 18th:

"Gas Flow Is Opened Up in Adamana Well"

HOLBROOK, Ariz.—18th. A big gas flow has been struck in the Adamana Well, unexpectedly tapped, the flow caught fire at the casing head and burned for five hours till Driller Ray Durfee brought up a steam line from the boiler.

Attempts to stifle the flame by means of blankets and boards only endangered the derrick.

The gas find has caused renewed interest in the efforts to find oil that has been known to exist here for several years.

Though a number of deep wells have been sunk through very hard rock and though the recent indications are pronounced by experts to be of the best, this gas development is the most important that has been known.

If you can afford to get in NOW it will only take $250 to make you the owner of a 10 acre lease and entitle you to SEVEN EIGHTHS of all the oil under it.

If you are unfortunate you will likely see some of your friends selling their 10 acre tracts at $1,500 to $3,000 an acre after the first well comes in.

If you wish to make some real money OWN THE LEASE yourself. Better phone or call in and see us today, tomorrow may be too late.

"Better Homes" Is Slogan This Week. National About Higher Standards

Underway this week is the celebration participated in by shops, manufacturers, decorating studios and the like all over the country, in commemoration of Better Homes Week, sponsored by an advisory council composed of the foremost men in America who have the nation's welfare at heart.

The Vice-President of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, the Secretary of State, the Secretaries of Labor, Commerce and other departments, as well as representative heads of Public Health Service, Education, Red Cross, the governors of various states and women active in club federations have carefully planned and supervised the movement.

The underlying spirit is toward the establishment on firmer basis of better homes, and is not the furthering of fads or fancies of fashion, although the trend in furniture-types and home-furnishing is, of course, of interest to home-makers. Recognizing that for several years America has been undergoing restless change due to war and post-war conditions, these thinkers to whom her advancement is of paramount importance are stressing the importance of successful home-making as a stabilizing effect on national welfare.

Trim colonial types, pillared Southern mansions, cozy bungalows, abound, and yet the Spanish history and Italian influences of tradition and climate have resulted in an architecture distinctly Californian.

The blue and gold of sun and sky, the stately palms and graceful pepper trees, are fit settings for such homes, and one momentarily expects to hear the thrum of guitar in shady patio amid the silver tinkle of fountains, or see a red rose tossed from the iron grill set in the thick walls!

Thus, to Glendale, city of distinctive homes, Better Home Week has a deep and special meaning, and the stores and shops which handle all things for the making of new homes, the re-establishment of old homes, and the enlivening and refreshing of the average home, have so well planned the displays, the helps and suggestions in the matter of service that every citizen, old or young, may spend a week, both pleasant and profitable, in tour and study of these suggestions.

Undoubtedly the pleasure and profit will not stop with the close of the week's movement, but will last throughout the year.

Furnish Your Home "Better Homes" Week at The ENTERPRISE in Glendale,---For Less.

For the past three months furniture prices have been steadily advancing. Mattresses and rugs, on account of higher cotton and wool prices, have advanced, and the wholesale cost of all kinds of furniture has advanced more or less. Knowing many of these advances would take place, we bought heavily at the lower prices, and can now save you money on most every furniture item.

For "Better Homes" Week we have made a special effort to give extra values, and ask that you at least visit our store and secure an idea of our money-saving prices.

The MUCKER
by Edgar Rice Burroughs
Copyright 1921 by Edgar Rice Burroughs

That there were excellent grounds for Theriere's belief that he could win Barbara Harding's hand with such a flying start as his daring plan would have assured him may not be questioned, for the man was cultivated, polished and, in a sinister way, good-looking. The title that he had borne upon the occasion of his visit to the yacht, was all unknown to his accomplices, his by right of birth, so that there was nothing other than a long-dead scandal in the French Navy that might have proved a bar to an alliance such as he dreamed of. And now to be thwarted at the last moment. It was unendurable. That pig of a Ward had sealed his own death warrant, of that Theriere was convinced.

The boats were now quite close to the yacht, which had slowed down almost to a dead stop. In answer to the query of the Lotus' captain Skipper Simms was explaining their trouble.

"I'm Captain Jones," he shouted, "of the brigantine Clarinda, Frisco to Yokohama with dynamite. We disabled our rudder yesterday, an' this afternoon fire started in the hold. It's makin' headway fast now, an' I'll reach the dynamite most any time. You'd better take us aboard, an' get away from here as quick as you can. Tain't safe nowhere within five hundred fathoms of her."

"You'd better make haste, Captain, hadn't you?" suggested Mr. Harding.

"I don't like the looks of things, sir," replied that officer. "She ain't flyin' any dynamite flag, an' if she was an' had a hold full there wouldn't be any particular danger to us, an' anyone that has ever shipped dynamite would know it, or ought to. It's not fire that detonates dynamite, it's concussion. No, sir, Mr. Harding, there's something queer here—I don't like the looks of it. Why just take a good look at the faces of those men. Did you ever see such an ugly-looking pack of unwhipped murderers in your life, sir?"

"I must admit that they're not an overly prepossessing crowd, Norris," replied Mr. Harding. "But it's not always either fair or safe to judge strangers entirely by appearances. I'm afraid that there's nothing else for it in the name of common humanity than take them aboard, Norris. I'm sure your fears are entirely groundless."

"Then it's your orders, sir, to take them aboard?" asked Captain Norris. "Yes, Captain, I think you'd better," said Mr. Harding. "Very good, sir," replied the officer, turning to give the necessary commands. The officers and men of the Halfmoon swarmed up the sides of the Lotus, dark-visaged, fierce, and forbidding. "Reminds me of a boarding party of pirates," remarked Billy Mallory, as he watched Blanco, the last to throw a leg over the rail, reach the deck.

"They're not very pretty, are they?" murmured Barbara Harding, instinctively shrinking closer to her companion.

"Pretty" scarcely describes them, Barbara," said Billy; "and do you know that somehow I am having difficulty in imagining them on their knees giving up thanks to the Lord for their rescue—that was your recent idea of 'em you will recall."

"If you have purposely set yourself the task of being more than ordinarily disagreeable to-day, Billy," said Barbara sweetly, "I'm sure it will please you to know that you are succeeding."

"I'm glad I'm successful at something then," laughed the man. "I've certainly been unsuccessful enough in another matter."

"What, for example?" asked Barbara, innocently.

"Why, in trying to make myself so agreeable heretofore that you'd finally consent to say 'yes' for a change."

"Now you are going to make it all the worse by being stupid," cried the girl petulantly. "Why can't you be nice, as you used to be before you got this silly notion into your head?"

"I don't think it's a silly notion to be heels over head in love with the sweetest girl on earth," cried Billy.

"Hush! Someone will hear you."

"I don't care if they do. I'd like to advertise it to the whole world. I'm proud of the fact that I love you; and you don't care enough about it to realize how really hard I'm hit—why I'd die for you, Barbara, and welcome the chance; why—My God! What's that?"

"O Billy! What are those men doing?" cried the girl. "They're shooting at papa! Quick, Billy! Do something. For heaven's sake do something!"

On the deck below them the "rescued" crew of the "Clarinda" had surrounded Mr. Harding. Captain Norris, and most of the crew of the Lotus, flashing quick-drawn revolvers from beneath shirts and coats, and firing at two of the yacht's men who showed fight.

"Keep quiet," commanded Skipper Simms, "an' there won't none of you get hurt."

"What do you want of us?" cried Mr. Harding. "If it's money take what you find aboard us, and go on your way. No one will hinder you."

TURKISH LEADER AGAIN AT STRIFE

Determined to Have War or Else Attempting to Stir Up France, England

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service.
LONDON, Oct. 9.—A definite decision by the Maudania armistice conference, based upon the Anglo-French compromise agreement and the fresh instructions sent to the allied generals at Constantinople is expected within the next forty-eight hours.

The cabinet met again today to discuss the Near East.

Two unfavorable developments were reported from Constantinople: One—Turkish troops that violated the neutral zone in the Ismid sector are repeating just outside the gates of Constantinople the same offensive tactics they pursued at Chanak.

War officials believe that Mustapha Kemal Pasha is determined either to have war or else is attempting to stir up fresh differences between France and Great Britain.

It is anticipated here that General Sir Charles Harrington, British commander at Constantinople and British delegate at Mudania, will take firm steps to deal with the latest Turkish violations of the neutral zone. This was expected to be one of the first subjects taken up when the armistice negotiations were renewed.

British government officials made light of the bitter press campaign which has developed against Premier Lloyd George. According to members of the government, the cabinet is unanimous upon the Near East policy and there are no dissensions.

Secretary Silent
The printed statement that Lord Curzon, British foreign secretary, threatened to resign Saturday unless his advice was followed in detail, was denied. The premier has made no formal reply to the press attack, which today attained the proportions of a drum fire.

His friends claim that the political enemies of the premier are trying to make domestic political capital out of a grave international issue.

Advices from Athens state that Greece, acting upon the advice of Premier Venizelos, will accept the allied conditions for evacuation of Eastern Thrace by Greek troops, but will request a month's extension of time so that all civilians can be evacuated from that district in safety.

New President of Ireland Is Sedate

New photo of Thomas Cosgrave, elected at the recent inaugural session of the Dail Eireann, or Irish Parliament. President Cosgrave is described as a yellow-haired, blue-eyed man of 42 years; sedate of manner and full of that pep, wit, and merri-merriment which one who knows Ireland always associates with men who come from Cosgrave's town.

Kilkenny, perhaps the most facile speaker in the Dail, and an old friend of Griffith and an admirer of Michael Collins.

Down the slide he slid. In the winter, you know.

"But I don't eat nuts!" said Uncle Wiggily. "A rabbit's teeth, you see, aren't made for gnawing the hard shells of nuts, though you squirrels have teeth just purposely made for that."

"Yes, Uncle Wiggily," said Billie. "But if you come with us, and we find any nuts, we'll crack them for you. Then you can eat the soft kernels inside."

"Yes," agreed the rabbit gentleman. "I could do that."

So Uncle Wiggily hopped along with Johnnie and Billie to go and look for nuts.

"One thing I forgot to tell you, though, my little squirrel chaps," spoke the bunny uncle. "I must be back in time for supper. Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy says she is getting tired of keeping my meals warm for me. If I'm not back on time I get no supper."

"Oh, we'll see that you get back in time," promised Billie. "We have to be back ourselves, or we won't get any supper, either," added Johnnie.

"That's all right, then!" chuckled the bunny gentleman. "So he and the squirrel boys hopped and scrambled on over the fields and through the woods, and soon they came to a little hill. As they reached it they heard voices saying:

"Oh, dear! Isn't it too bad?" "We can't have any fun at all, now!"

"And we came all the way over here to have a slide! It's just too bad for anything!"

"I wonder what this means?" whispered Uncle Wiggily. "Maybe it's the Wolf or Fox," whispered Johnnie.

"It doesn't sound like them," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll peek

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SLIPPERY SLIDE

"Uncle Wiggily! Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Are you coming with us this morning?" chattered Billie and Johnnie Bushytail, the two squirrels, as they ran patteringly up the steps of the old rabbit gentleman's hollow stump bungalow.

"Well, my little squirrel chaps?" spoke up Uncle Wiggily, as he gave his pink nose an extra fine twinkle. "It all depends on where you are going. If you are going to lead me to the den of the Wolf or Fox, I am not going!" and the bunny uncle laughed in glee.

"Oh, we wouldn't lead you there—not for all this world and part of another one," chattered Billie. "We're just going to take you off nutting with us," explained Johnnie. "This is the time of year when we gather nuts that we through the bushes and see." And when he had carefully looked he said: "It is my friends the otters. Some of the otter boys and girls are there on top of the hill, and they seem to be in trouble. I must see if I can help them."

Knowing that otters, who are animals something like beavers—in that they live in the water and have thick fur—were also friends of theirs, Johnnie and Billie followed Uncle Wiggily out to the top of the hill.

"What is the matter, my dear otters?" asked the bunny gentleman.

"Oh," explained one of the otter boys, "we came all the way over here from our home near the river to have a slide," and he pointed to the hill, where a place was worn smooth in the dirt, as though much sliding had been done there.

"We come here every year to slide," went on the otter boy, "but to make the slide slippery we must have water, and the pool at the bottom of the slide is all dried up."

This was true enough. When otters find a hill leading down into a pool or stream of water, they dip themselves in the water; go to the top of the hill and slide down. Soon the slide is a place of slippery mud and it is like coming in winter to go down it.

But with no water there could be no slide.

"And goodness knows when it will rain," said a girl otter. "We might wait a week for a shower to make the slide slippery. Oh, dear!"

Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose. He was beginning to have an idea.

"Boys!" he cried to the squirrel chaps, "aren't there some kind of slippery nuts?"

"Butternuts are very slippery and greasy," cried Billie and Johnnie.

"Please get me some and we'll make a slippery slide for our friends, the otters," cried the bunny.

Billie and Johnnie soon gathered a pile of butternuts. The squirrel boys gnawed through the hard shells with their sharp teeth. Then the otters and Uncle Wiggily pushed up the greasy, buttery meats. Some of these kernels were crunched on the dry side of earth, and in a little while it was as slippery as slush.

"Oh, it's even better than when it has water on!" cried the otter. "It's just nifty!" laughed a little girl otter.

So the other children had fun on Uncle Wiggily's slippery slide until, all of a sudden, the bunny gentleman said:

"It's getting late! Bless my pink nose, I shan't be home in time for Nurse Jane's supper and I won't get any."

"Slide down the butternut slide!" cried Billie and Johnnie. "Slide like the otters and you can take the short cut home."

"I will!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, and down the slide he slid, and he reached his bungalow just in time for supper.

"Oh what fun that was!" he cried, twinkling his nose again. "And if the fried egg doesn't try to turn a somersault in the pan and make the teakettle stop singing, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Little Giddle."

APPARATUS AND DEVICES

By RALPH BROWN, RADIO ENGINEER

A DETECTOR AND ONE-STEP AMPLIFIER

The amplifier control box shown in the illustration contains vacuum tube detector and amplifier circuits and their controls. A switch permits the use of either the detector or the amplifier.

Separate rheostats and ammeters are provided with each for filament control, the degree of amplification being controlled by the amplifier rheostat.

The amplifier is a departure from the usual type, operating on the principle of low frequency resonance and variable input impedance.

The detector and amplifier have shock-proof mountings designed to eliminate "noise" due to mechanical vibration. These in turn are mounted on a bakelite-dielectric cabinet, and the whole encased in an oak cabinet.

It is rugged and with proper care will have an indefinitely long life.

MAGNETIC EFFECT OF CURRENT

There is a peculiar phenomena about a current of electricity passing along a wire called "magnetic effect" or the "magnetic field." By this effect it is possible by certain well known rules to determine the direction of the flow of current. Perhaps the simplest method is as follows: If a wire carrying a current of electricity is placed parallel to, but above, a small compass needle the needle will turn at a right angle to the wire. If the current is broken the needle will return to its parallel position. If the current is flowing toward the north the deflection of the needle will be with its north pole to the left, or west, if the compass is placed under the wire. On the other hand, if the compass is placed over the wire and the current is flowing north the compass needle will point its north pole to the right, or east. If the current is reversed in the wire the opposite effect would be observed in each respective case.

However, the direction of flow of electric current is in any event a matter of arbitrary definition, and in practice the student will usually determine the direction by means of an instrument, but these simple rules are useful to a student in assisting to a better understanding.

Another simple rule is one that determines the direction of the magnetic field and is called the "right hand rule."

Grasp the wire with the right hand, with the thumb extended along the wire in the direction of the current. The curved finger tips will then indicate the direction of the magnetic effect.

Another method is: Imagine a wood screw being advanced into a block in the direction of the current. The direction of its rotation then indicates the direction of the magnetic field around the wire or conductor.

The student would do well to familiarize himself with one of these simple rules by practice with a small compass and a simple electric circuit.

We Have Your Copy Of An Interesting Book On Internal Baths. It Is Free

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell always claimed his life was saved by Internal Bathing.

And that after it made him well, it kept him 100% well and efficient for many years.

This is not hard to believe when Physicians agree that most human ills are caused by accumulated waste in the lower intestine and no medicine has ever been found to keep it free from these poisons.

Dr. Tyrrell's book tells why and how this has been the means of freeing over a million of enlightened Americans, many right here in town, from "that tired feeling" as well as the more serious illnesses which follow if the pernicious poisons are not cleansed out.

Pure warm water scientifically administered, will take these poisons out and keep them out.

Favors were carried out in the class colors of blue and white and the place cards also carried out the color scheme. There were fifty members present.

Among the toasts given were the following: "Our Class and Its Motto" by Lela Neuberger, "Our Past" by Ruby Eubanks, "Our Future" by Nell Leggett, "Our New Members" by Hazel Wilder, "Our Teacher" by Lillian Webster, "Our Pastor" by Garnet Peters, "Our Girls" by Miss Maude Soper. Rev. Clifford Cole, pastor, gave a talk on the "S. O. S. Class and Its Relation to the Church." Mrs. A. Smith, teacher of the class, introduced the speaker of the evening, Carl A. Bundy, of Los Angeles, who gave an address on "Our Saviour."

MARION LETTS HOSTESS

Marion Letts of 450 West Lexington drive was hostess Saturday afternoon at a meeting of Troop 20, Girl Scouts, of which Miss Vera Sinclair is hostess. Over twenty members of the troop were present and discussed business affairs and made plans for a trip to the Children's Hospital in Los Angeles, October 21, and for a Halloween party the last of the month.

Two new members received were Thelma Barger and Elizabeth Hoffman.

DINNER PARTY FOR CLASS

The members of the Philathea class of the First Baptist church, of which Miss Sara Pollard, is teacher, were entertained with a dinner party given Saturday night at the home of the secretary, Miss Mary Circle, of 448 West Maple avenue in celebration of the birthday anniversary of two of the class members, Miss Florence Kirk and Miss Ethel Chase. Others present included Miss Maude Moody, Miss Edith Stevens, Miss Sadie Houdyshel, Miss Annie Chase, Miss Alice Fitz and Miss Pollard.

Decorations were carried out in a color scheme of pink, with pink cosmos and pink crepe paper dolls as place cards. Games were enjoyed after dinner and plans made for the winter's work.

MRS. PUTNAM HOSTESS

Eight non-affiliated P. E. O. members were guests Saturday afternoon at a social afternoon at the home of Mrs. Vernon Putnam at 208 West Elk avenue, with members of the reciprocity bureau of the Glendale chapters of P. E. O. as hostesses.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mesdames Letitia Lusby, Ed M. Lee, Cora Webster, Walter Stamps, Madeline Kelley, E. W. W. Hayward, Vernon Putnam and Miss Blanche Davenport.

The afternoon was spent informally, some of the time being devoted to the possible organization of a new P. E. O. chapter for the sixteen non-affiliated members now living in Glendale. Such action will doubtless be necessary since all the Glendale chapters have full membership lists.

Those received as guests Saturday were Mesdames Miltenberger, Jones, Summercamp, Shawhen, Baker, Oustott, and Misses Ostergard and Croch.

Invitations were also extended to Mesdames Donley, Shively, Kooms, Boco, and Misses Platt, Halverson and Brown.

WAR BLAMED FOR CRIME INCREASE

London Psychologist Says Murder Urge Develops While at School

By THOMAS C. WATSON

For International News Service. LONDON.—"The murder instinct is developed at school," says the psychologist of the London county council, "and the increased crime among the juveniles is due to the fact that there was not sufficient care exercised over the children during the war, owing to the absence of the fathers on active service, and their neglect at the schools due to the understaffing of the teachers."

The education authorities of London have of late been puzzled by the abnormality of many of the children about 14 years and their tendency to crime. A few months ago they started a psychological department, with the eminent Mr. Cyril Burt as the head, and he has instituted a special investigation into the history of the backward and abnormal children.

In all cases he found that the young criminals were the children of soldiers who missed the disciplined hand at the time when it was most required—the ages of 7 and 8. Already the result of their work has been apparent. Schoolboy crime has decreased and continues to decrease.

"Sleepy sickness," said Mr. Burt to the International News correspondent, "has left a number of delinquent children. These who have been affected often become idiots; among the older children there are neurotic criminals. Some of the cases can be treated by psychoanalysis, but as that means two or three hours must be devoted to each child it has been found to be too expensive."

"Three times as many boys as girls are charged with criminal offences, and I find that the biggest difference in the sexes is in the criminal instinct. Many reasons can be assigned for a delinquency. The arrival of a baby may excite jealousy in a boy."

Deaths and Funerals

RAYMOND S. GOODWIN

Funeral services for Raymond S. Goodwin, formerly of Glendale but now of La Crescenta, will be held tomorrow afternoon, Tuesday, October 10, 1922, in the Little Church of the Flowers, in charge of Pulliam, Kiefer & Eyerick.

Mr. Goodwin was riding to Glendale in an automobile Saturday accompanied by his brothers, Harry A. Goodwin of La Crescenta, and Lee W. Goodwin of Los Angeles. He was taken by a stroke of heart attack while en route and died almost immediately upon reaching the residence of Dr. James A. Belyea at 220 South Central avenue.

Mr. Goodwin was born in Peoria, Ill., October 18, 1880, and was almost 42 years of age. He came to California 15 years ago. He was an accountant by occupation.

Mrs. H. A. Goodwin of La Crescenta survives her son. A third brother, Roy I. Goodwin, lives in Boise, Idaho.

MILES O. MOREHOUSE

The funeral services of Miles O. Morehouse, who died at his home, 1900 East Lomita avenue, on Friday night, October 6, 1922, will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the First Nazarene church of Los Angeles. The church is located on the corner of Sixth and Wall streets, Los Angeles. Interment will take place at Grand View cemetery.

Say Finery Banned By Mothers In Town

HOLLIS, Okla.—Mothers of this town have spelled doom for fluffs and ruffles and silks and satins for young misses while they are attending school this year. Shortly before school opened fifty mothers in a mass meeting voted unanimously for simple dress for their daughters. Plain gingham or serge dresses, lisle or woolen hose and no expensive materials are to be in vogue, according to their edict.

Their recommendations also suggest that their ban on feminine finery be extended to include the teachers.

Daughter will attend classes sans rouge, sans lip-stick and sans powder, according to another proviso in the mothers' recommendations.

KEITH L. BROOKS SPEAKS TO CLASS

Man Who Shares Christ's Life Will Share His Fate
In Some Degree, Claim

"The way to escape the hostility of the world is to haul down the Gospel flag and join in with the world," asserted Rev. Keith L. Brooks in the council chamber of the city hall yesterday morning before the men's class of the Presbyterian church.

"The world loves all people that are like itself," he continued. The man who shares the life of Christ will in some degree share His fate. In this world we cannot love Godliness and hate evil without treading upon sore toes. If we are the salt of the earth, we will make someone smart.

"Believers are not of the world. We are supposed to be diametrically opposed to the things of the worldly man. If the world is in love with a Christian man it is usually because he has given the world some reason to think he is in line with it.

"In many quarters the church and the world seem to get on very well together in these days. The reason is that the church has become secularized. There is little in some churches to draw the antagonism of the world. The church is not persecuted because it has lost its voice.

Joy and Religion
Some have an idea that joy and religion cannot dwell together in the same person. It is unfortunate that some good folks manage to make their religion so unattractive. Christ does not intend it to be so.

"I was told of a preacher, who was going to a nearby village to supply the pulpit. He was to be met at the station by a woman who had never seen him. When the train came in, she looked about for some sour, sickly-looking individual to approach as the minister. Finding such a man she asked him if he had come to the town to preach. His answer was: 'Not on your life—it's my liver complaint that makes me look that way.'

"The child of God may have Christ's own joy according to the promise. The world's joy is dependent upon changing external things. The true joy is the result of union with Christ and bearing fruit in his name.

"The branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine. 'Apart from me ye can do nothing.' Here is the condemnation of all the busy life of men not lived in union with Christ."

'THE HOLY CITY' IS SERMON TOPIC

Dr. James Winnard, Tropic Presbyterian Church Tells of Future

"The Holy City" was the topic of the sermon yesterday at the Tropic Presbyterian church. "These last chapters of Revelation are not mysterious," declared Dr. James F. Winnard.

"They are marvelous. While this book as a whole may be little understood by many because of its symbolism, these last chapters are full of the simple word pictures of the glorious City. There is no reason to question the veracity of the man who gave us this remarkable picture of future glory for he wrote as he was moved by the Holy Spirit.

"Our source of knowledge concerning the Holy City is limited to a very few passages of Scripture. And these, while leaving much to the imagination, encourage its exercise, by stating that the half has not been told nor has it entered into the heart of man.

"To enter the Holy City is the hope of every child of God. It is the end and aim of the Christian religion. And this hope we have holds us in restraint in time of temptation and is a source of strength to us in time of trouble, for we know that all things work together for good to them that love God. The hope of heaven keeps us right when all else fails and the love of Jesus falls us. It enables us to keep possession of our birthright. Esau lost his birthright when he lost his hope. 'I am about to die' was his cry of hunger, but the sons of God are 'about to live the life more abundant.'

Prospects for Entering
"What are our prospects for entering? It is well to consider this matter for it often happens that hope for future attainments and present prospects for reaching them are widely separated. In order to find answer to this question we must search the Scripture to find the qualifications for entering.

"While it may be lightly spoken that Peter is the keeper of the door of this wonderful city, yet let it never be forgotten that it was Christ who said, 'I am the door, by Me if any man enter in he shall be saved.'

"What John saw in vision we may see in reality. To him the 'River' was but a mirage, but to us it's the thirst quenching stream of which we are invited to come and drink freely. A home in this city is the birthright of every one 'born of God.'

WILLIAM SAMPLE IS MILLIONAIRE

Amateur Detective's Reward
Is $5000 for Locating
Missing Heir

POPULAR BLUFF, Mo.—After a world-wide search for William Sample, heir to a fortune estimated at $2,500,000, lasting for four months, the new millionaire has been found on a steamship in the harbor of Bangkok, Siam, ready to sail to America for a visit to his home in southeast Missouri.

George Pind, of Cape Girardeau, has been conducting the search in order that he might turn over the vast fortune to its owner. The fortune was left to Sample by relatives who recently died.

As the news of the search for Sample found its way to every nook and corner of the globe, hundreds of "William Samples" appeared to Pind for the money. When they would arrive at Cape Girardeau and find Pind, the latter would make them turn around, and he would look at the back of their necks before making any statement.

Scar On Neck
Pind stated, after the rightful owner of the fortune was located, that the rightful heir had a scar on the back of his neck and that this mark would be the deciding factor in ascertaining the one William Sample for whom he was searching.

When he was found, Sample said he had been in Siam for a number of years and did not know of the search being conducted for him. He appeared to be greatly pleased with the news of his newly-acquired millions and could hardly wait until his boat left for America. He was found by an amateur detective who had been assigned to assist in locating Sample. The detective, according to Pind, was paid $5,000 for his successful search.

A greater part of the legacy acquired by Sample is in a diamond mine in South Africa, it is claimed.

CHURCH SERVICE ON ANNIVERSARY

113th Founding of Christian
Branch Is Observed by Local Institution

The 113th anniversary of the founding of the Christian church in Washington, Pennsylvania, was observed yesterday at the Central Christian church.

"Surely a movement as great as ours came into the world for something," declared Rev. C. A. Cole. "The ship sails toward the port, the caravan moves to the far country, the eagle soars to yonder mountain home, the chariot rolls toward a goal, man moves to that mysterious realm. Purpose is everywhere and toward one fixed, far-off divine event, the whole creation moves.

"If we have no purpose, no plea, no cause for coming into the world, what a sad travesty of the Christ spirit is our work. We do have a plea—a plea as high as the heavens, as broad as the world and as deep as the sea.

Held As Supreme
"It is not an exaltation of the Book, much as we love it. Others hold before it with equal reverence holding it as supreme. It is not the laboring of creeds. They have not all standing as tests of orthodoxy. To be sure the creeds are yet with us but as shadows only. It is not to proclaim a universal Christ yet in its proclamation we've had a heroic part. It is not the preaching of immersion.

"What is our plea and mission? It is twofold. It is a mission to the lost world, an unevangelized world. It calls us to fulfill Christ's commission: 'Go ye unto all peoples to a crusade's zeal for reaching out for the last, lost man. It commits us to a passion for souls and to consecration of time and talent and means to carry forward the banner of Christ.

"Our mission is to a divided church; to utter a protest against disunity; to create a hunger for unity; to point out a way to realize it.

"For 100 years we have held forth this three-fold plea. Disunity crucifies the Lord afresh and puts Him to an open shame. Suppose the police, fire and educational departments were divided as we are? A Presbyterian policeman on this corner, a Methodist policeman there, an Episcopal policeman there, a Democratic fire station there, and a Socialistic there, a homeopathic ward school here, an allopathic there and an osteopathic there.

"Then, to complete the picture, have some apostles! Say, 'Well, variety, you know, is God's plan. We can't all agree on how drunk men should be locked up, on fires, on pedagogical rules. Rivalries are wholesome, and, besides, you see, we are all working for the same end.' Oh, it's enough to make the angels weep."

KENSINGTON CLUB TO MEET
The members of the Kensington club, social order of the Women's Relief corps, will meet Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at G. A. R. hall. They have been instructed to come with needles, thread and thread in order to assist the president, Mrs. Julia Hayes, in making comforts, to help the W. R. C. in their work of caring for the needy. The hostess, Mrs. Caroline Kretzmer, with her committee will serve tea, coffee and cake at noon, in addition to the favorite dishes from the various members.

Turk Cavalry and Infantry Advancing

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 9.—Turkish cavalry and infantry were reported today to be moving northward toward Constantinople past the Ismid peninsula. Turkish reinforcements are on their way to Ismid, only thirty-five miles east of this city. Ismid is the Black Sea port within the neutral zone where Turkish cavalry appeared on Saturday.

The Turks appear to be drawing a line from the city of Ismid, in a northeasterly direction, to Ismid.

Allied officials travelling between this city and Mudania, the seat of the Near East armistice negotiations, pass back and forth on warships.

It is understood that the armistice conference today will discuss details of the Anglo-French compromise agreement. It is supported by the Italians.

So far as known, when this dispatch was written Mustapha Kemal Pasha, commander-in-chief of the Turkish army, has not yet reached Mudania.

The British military authorities have suppressed ferry service against the Bosphorus from the Asiatic mainland to Constantinople.

THEATRES

The T. D. & L.

Katherine MacDonald in "The Infidel" appearing now at the T. D. & L. theatre in the film interpretation of Charles Logue's story of that same name. It is an unusual picture in the matter of its drama, its characterizations, its locale and the other elements that enter into the composition of the big play of the screen.

Miss MacDonald appears as a young unbeliever thrown in contact with the missionaries and natives of the South Sea Isles. She falls in love with the man whose ruin she nearly brings about, when she discovers that she has been made the unwitting tool of another who aims to gain control of the copra trade. There is an island uprising in which the marines come to the rescue in thrilling fashion. The chain of circumstances changes the viewpoint of the girl; she becomes a believer and the romance ends happily. Photographically "The Infidel" reveals some extraordinarily picturesque scenes in the far-off isles of the Southern Pacific.

The Glendale

A beautiful Spanish senorita returns to live with her aunt, in a picturesque country settled long ago by Spanish colonists in America, and she loses her heart to a handsome American mining engineer. This is the beginning of the fascinating Zane Grey film story, now being presented at the Glendale Theatre.

Claire Adams, brunette, who is a typical heroine of Zane Grey's stories, plays the lead, with Carl Gantvoort playing opposite her. An interesting and novel feature of the film is the presentation of an American circus in a small Spanish town. Six experienced animal trainers were engaged for making the animal scenes and the task confronting the director was particularly difficult in that it entailed the use of the animals in conjunction with a large mob of extras. It is said that the Mexican extras were more afraid of the animals than they would have been of an army.
